

Get Gritty

WINTER
HORSEMANSHIP CHALLENGE

FIND YOUR BALANCE

getgrittycowgirl.com

Balance isn't fitting everything in.
It's starting with what's important and letting the rest fall as it will.

Erica Layne

Disclaimer: Horsemanship Life and Mindset Coaching is not a substitute for professional mental health care or medical care and is not intended to diagnose, treat or cure any mental health or medical conditions. By completing this workbook, I understand that Siobhan "Chevy" Allen is not acting as a mental health counselor or a medical professional.

WHAT IS BALANCE?

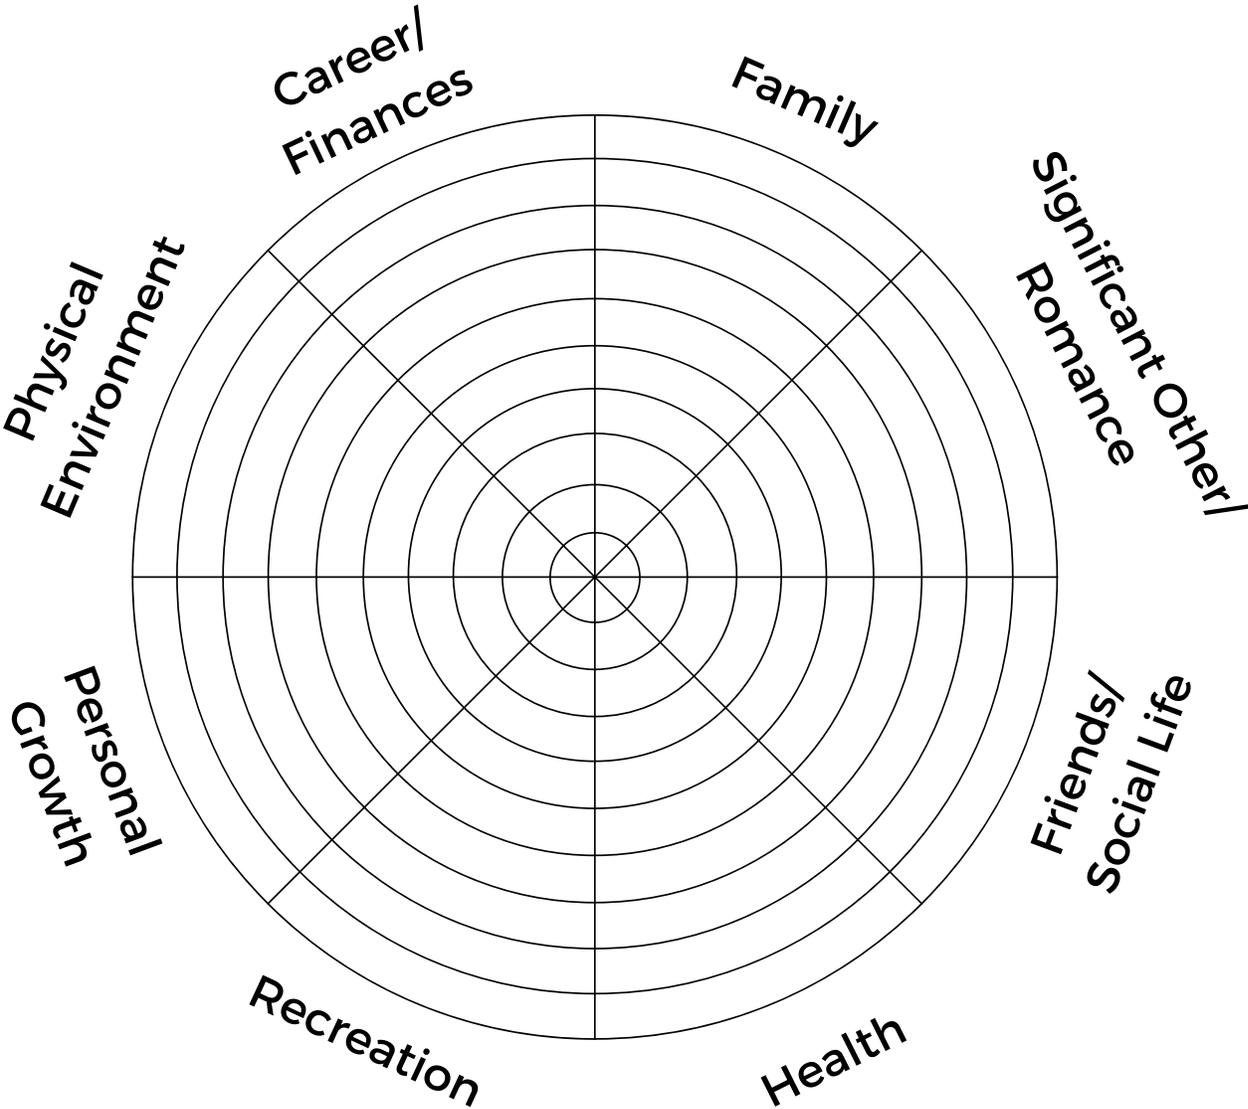

- Balance isn't about spending the same amount of time in all areas of our life.
- Nothing is a problem because of the amount of time we spend doing it.
- It's only a problem if the amount of time we spend takes away from other important aspects of our life and drains us.

A balanced life is when you are doing the things that feed your body, mind, and soul as well as doing the things that expend energy.

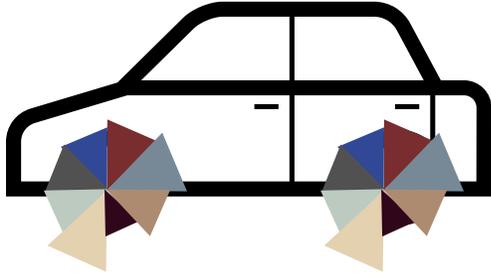

*Balance is about energy,
not time!*

Wheel of Life Exercise

Fill out the wheel by marking your current level of satisfaction in each area of your life.

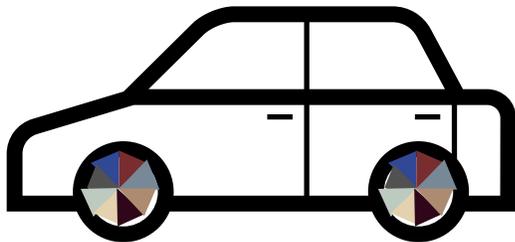

Wheel of Life Exercise

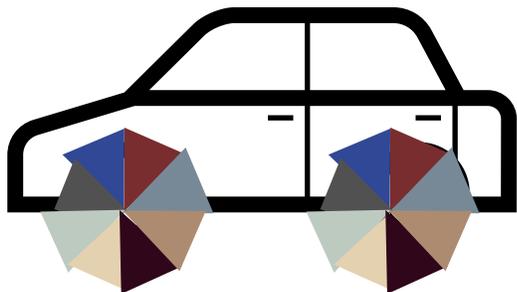

If your wheel was the wheel on your car, would it be a smooth ride?

Most people end up with an uneven wheel, where we focus more on certain areas of our life at the expense of others.

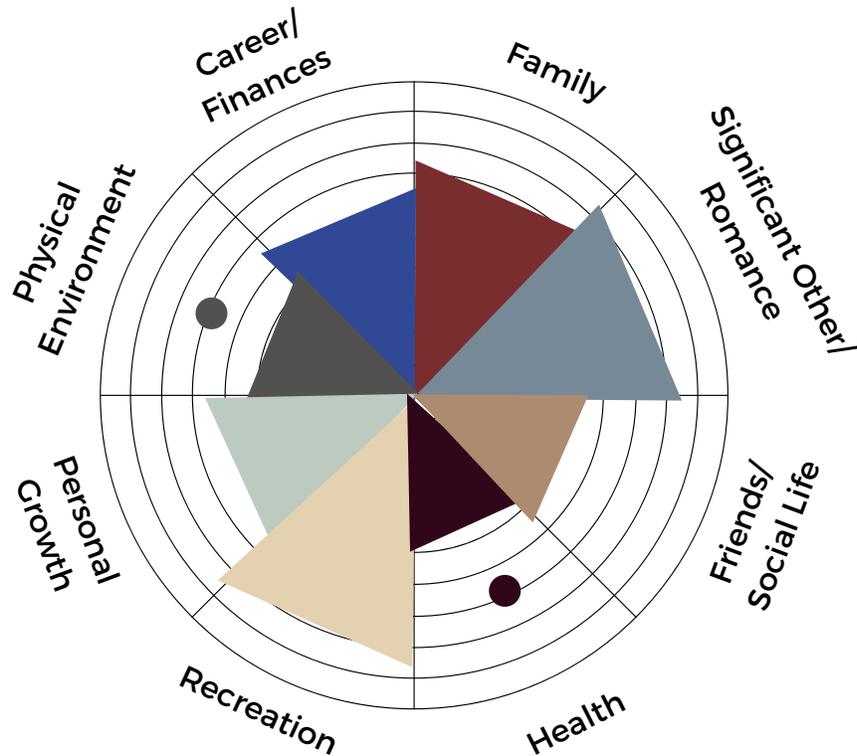

Sometimes people end up with small wheels. This would be a slow car, not living up to your potential.

The goal is to be rolling on large, smooth wheels!

Wheel of Life Exercise

So go back to your wheel. For the lower satisfaction areas, mark with a dot where you want that area of your life to be.

Imagine what it would be like if that area of your life improved?

Why is this area of your life important to you?

What are some things that would help you to be more balanced in that area?

Now, you might be thinking,

"But Chevy, now I have more to do! I already don't have enough time, that's why my life is out of balance!"

I totally get it!

I feel the same way!

Let's talk about Time Management.

How Full Is Your Glass?

Is the glass full?

How about now?

How about now?

I'm sure for all of us, our horses are a big rock, something that is important.

Have you ever not had room in your cup for your big horse rock?

What if we filled our glass differently?

What if we put the big rocks-
the most important, time
limited things-in our cup first?

Then we put in the little rocks-
the tasks we must do next.

Then we added in the sand-
those tasks that aren't time limited.

Then we pour in the water-the things that aren't as important.

You can fit a lot more if you are intentional about how you fill your glass!

Making Time for the Big Rocks

Awareness

Determine what is really important to you.

Know what gives you energy.

Know what you have to do that drains your energy.

Know what your time sucks are. (Netflix? Social Media?)

Share your priorities with your support system.

Making Time for the Big Rocks

Visualize to Motivate!

Visualize the payoffs of doing the activities.

Visualize what it will be like if you don't do the activity.

What will it be like if you binge watch Bridgerton on Netflix instead of going out and riding your horse in the snow?

Make a Plan

Put the Big Rocks in your schedule first!

Break down big tasks into more manageable, smaller steps.

Making Time for the Big Rocks

Take Action

What gets scheduled gets done.

Just do it already!

Make appointments with yourself-and KEEP THEM!

When you catch yourself in a time suck, ask:

Why am I doing this?

What would happen if I didn't do this? What would happen if I did X instead?

How does this activity support my goals?

Does this need to be done right now?

What is the best use of my time right now?